Comments: Owens, James Clark (Male) James was Bishop of the Woodruff Ward, Navajo, Arizona. With his parents he passed through the trials and drivings of the Saints, first in Missouri and afterwards in Illinois. He attended the conference at Nauvoo, August 8, 1844, and remembered how Brigham Young was transformed in the eyes of the people. With his father's family, he located temporarily at Mt. Pisgah, Iowa, at the time of the exodus in 1846. From this point his father started out in search of work, but was caught in a severe storm and badly frozen. He died from the effects of this exposure. The family crossed the plains in Captain Hodge's ox company in 1853. Bro. Owens wintered at Provo, Utah and in early 1854 he moved to Fillmore where he quarried rock for the State house. In January, 1856, he married Lucretia P. Robinson and the following year cut stone for the Salt Lake Temple. He did the same labor also in 1870-77. He also worked as a stone mason on the St. George Temple in 1876. He served as a High Counselor. He served as sheriff a number of years in Southern Utah and was captain in the militia during the Walker and Black Hawk Wars. In November, 1878, he moved to Arizona and the following year was ordained a Bishop and set apart to preside over the Woodruff Ward by Wilford Woodruff. Together with other settlers who suffered the loss of their dams and crops for a number of years, he had to find employment on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad to earn bread for his family. After serving as Bishop at Woodruff about twelve years, he removed to Fillmore, Utah, where he remained four years and then returned again to Woodruff, Arizona. He died of heart failure.
